VETERANS DAY REMINDER: MILITARY SERVICE AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By Andrew Salata, Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Each year, on November 11, America observes Veterans Day and honors the men and women who have served in our nation's Armed Forces. Many of our Vietnam era veterans are now nearing retirement age, or already there. It is important that they - and other American service personnel - know just what retirement benefits they can count on from Social Security as they make their future financial plans.

Like most of the civilian workforce, all current military personnel pay Social Security taxes and earn Social Security coverage. Earnings for active duty military service or active duty training have been covered under Social Security since 1957. Also, earnings for inactive duty service in the reserves (such as weekend drills) have had Social Security coverage since 1988.

In addition to regular military pay, Social Security adds special earnings credits to an individual's Social Security record when he or she serves in the military. The extra earnings are for periods of active duty or active duty training. If, for example, a person served in the military between 1957 and 1977, he or she has been credited with $300 in additional earnings for each calendar quarter in which active duty basic pay was earned. These extra earnings may help someone qualify for Social Security or increase the amount of the Social Security benefit.

The number of credits an individual needs to qualify for Social Security depends on his or her age and the type of benefit. Any future Social Security benefit payment depends on a person's earnings, averaged over a working lifetime. Generally, the higher a person's earnings, the higher his or her Social Security benefit will be.

And remember that Social Security is more than retirement. If a worker becomes disabled before reaching retirement age, he or she may be eligible for Social Security disability benefits. A disabled worker's spouse and dependent children also may be eligible for benefits. If a worker dies, the widow or widower and dependent children may be eligible for Social Security survivors benefits.

If you, or someone you know, were wounded while on active duty in the military, find out more about what Social Security can do by visiting our website designed specifically for wounded warriors:

www.socialsecurity.gov/woundedwarriors. There, you will find answers to a number of commonly asked questions, as well as other useful information about disability benefits and Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

Veterans and others who are within 10 years of retirement age should begin planning for retirement. A good place to start is with Social Security's Retirement Estimator at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator.

For more information, you can read our fact sheet, Military Service and Social Security, which is available on our website at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10017.html.

CHICAGO HONORS AMERICA'S VETERANS NOV. 11 AT SOLDIER FIELD CEREMONY

Veterans Day is the one day set aside to thank and honor living veterans who served honorably in the military in wartime or peacetime. This year's ceremony honors those veterans who work tirelessly to acknowledge and assist these brave men and women each and every day. The ceremony will be held at the Doughboy statue inside Gate 0 of Soldier Field "on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month." (November 11, 2011 at 11a.m.)

The event's keynote speaker is Specialist U.S. Army (Retired) Danielle Green-Byrd, one of the first women wounded in the conflict in Iraq, earning a purple heart. Green-Byrd, a Chicago native who attended Roosevelt High School, was a standout basketball player for the University of Notre Dame, scoring 1000 points and making 500 rebounds. Upon her return, veterans' benefits afforded Green-Byrd the opportunity to obtain two Masters Degrees and pursue a career in counseling. She now works for the Department of Veterans Affairs as a Readjustment Counselor at the Orland Park Vets Center, an affiliate of Hines VA Hospital.

Also speaking is MSgt. Jean Albright, USAF (Retired), who completed 20 years of honorable service in the U.S. Air Force. While in the Air Force, Albright served in various roles including Manager of Public Affairs for the U.S. Military Entrance Processing Command at Great Lakes Naval Base in Illinois. As a member of the board of directors of the Service Members Legal Defense Network, a national organization which works on behalf of gay and lesbian service members, she worked toward the repeal of Don't Ask Don't Tell. She has been Director of New Media for Windy City Media Group in Chicago since 1994.

The Veterans Day Ceremony is FREE and open to the public; complimentary parking is available at Waldron Parking Deck on the south end of Soldier Field. For more information, call the Department of Cultural Affairs and Special Events (312)744-3316 or visit www.explorechicago.org/dcase.

"A Theater Review"

"The Doyle and Debbie Show"

Royal George Cabaret Theatre

1641 N. Halsted Street, Chicago, Illinois

Reviewed by Richard A. Eisenhardt

If you're a person who goes to the theatre to have a good time - you like corny dialogue and country music, then this is the perfect show for you.

The show was created by Bruce Arnstson and this fast-paced ninety-minute musical stars Mr. Arnstson along with Jennie Littleton as Debbie and Matt Carlton as Doyle's sidekick.

The show offers all original songs such as "Just Keep Me," "Stock Car Love," "Barefoot and Pregnant," "Daddy's Hair," and "When You're Screwing Other Women, Think of Me." These are five of the sixteen songs the show has to offer patrons.

One critic sitting next to me was laughing up a storm. Another critic who believes all people from the south are hillbillies didn't use that word in his comments.

I remember the National Barn Dance that originated in Chicago long ago and when I was in Nashville I attended the Grand Old Opry. All these down home fun shows are long gone.

Ms. Littleton will remind you of Dolly Parton and in a way steals the show from Arnstson. Ms. Littleton sings great and Arnstson has a pleasant voice.

Carlton is their one-man band who has a few comic moments.

The spoof will have you roaring in the aisles with laughter. Doyle as the story goes and who had his day back in the 70's is trying to revive his career thirty years later as we hear about his four wives and along the way has had two other Debbie's in his act. His female partner Debbie is a single mother who has three children who spend their time in the car while she is performing in small bars and bowling alleys.

I was brought up to enjoy all types of music and I would go back to see this romp again. The only music I find it difficult to appreciate is rap and heavy metal but it's safe to say this is down home fun. It should have a longer run. "The Doyle and Debbie Show" runs through December 31st. For show days - show times and reservations call 312-988-9000. Tickets are $43.50 and $49.50.

Academic performance improves when students enter college with a healthy sense of self and clarity of purpose. JLI provides the forum for high school kids to think deeply about themselves and build a personal foundation of beliefs and values.

This course explores hot button issues such as suicide, drug usage, hostage negotiations, responsibility towards strangers and the value of life. Through open conversation led by trained educators, students will discover their inner compass and prepare themselves for the challenges ahead.

At JLI, teenagers think for themselves, draw their own conclusions, and ultimately learn to make good decisions.

MONDAY NIGHTS - Nov 7th - Dec 12th @ 7:30pm - 9:00pm

This course will be held at The Mooz 4049 Dempster St in Skokie.

Tuition is $50 and includes textbook and dinner. Scholarships are readily available. Sign your teen up for this remarkable experience!

Do I Need to Plan If I Have Joint Tenancy Property?

Chester M. Przybylo

We all have the friends or family that think they are the armchair experts on everything. They want to walk on your back when you are in agony. They told you Enron was a hot stock to buy. And, they tell you that all you need is to hold assets in joint tenancy.

Joint tenancy is a method of titling real estate, brokerage accounts, and other property. With joint tenancy, each joint tenant has an equal right to the property. At the death of one of the joint tenants, the other joint tenant(s) automatically get(s) the interest of the owner who died. For example, Betty is a widow and she adds her son Ben as a joint tenant. Upon Betty's death, Ben would be the only remaining joint tenant and would have complete ownership of the property.

Joint tenancy is seemingly simple, the property passes automatically at death. However, it is not necessarily the best way to proceed. First, in this case, Ben's creditors can take their proportionate interest or can file suit for a partition or force a sale. This is especially problematic when a parent adds a child for "simplicity" and then ends up losing half the property when junior gets sued for a drunk driving accident.

The transfer into joint tenancy for some things, such as real estate, is a gift. If this gift is over $13,000, a gift tax return must be filed. If joint tenancy is a bank account, there is a gift upon withdrawal by the other joint tenant. So, when Betty added Ben on the title, she made a gift to her son, Ben. If, down the road, Ben is taken off the title, he has made a gift back to his mother, Betty. This could be especially problematic if Betty is trying to qualify for Medicaid benefits, because a gift typically causes a period of ineligibility. Suddenly, this "simple" form of holding property is not so simple after all.

In addition to gifting concerns and creditors, Ben could get divorced and Ben's interest in the property could be part of that settlement.

A better solution would be to have Betty establish a revocable trust and put that property, among others, in the trust. The property still avoids probate and Betty can specify when and how Ben will get the property, yet his creditors will not be able to get it.

An attorney who focuses his or her practice in estate planning can save you from your "know it all" friend and can help you find a solution that fits your needs.

BOOKAMANIA, A CELEBRATION OF CHILDREN'S BOOKS

The Chicago Public Library continues its celebration of children's books and authors with its 18th annual Bookamania on Saturday, November 19, 2011, at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St. This free event takes place from 11:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. throughout the building, including in the Thomas Hughes Children's Library, Winter Garden, Cindy Pritzker Auditorium, Lower Level Multipurpose Rooms and Main Lobby. Bookamania is made possible through a grant from the Chicago Public Library Foundation and the Target Corporation.

"Bookamania offers families a day of fun, free activities celebrating the wonderful worlds that exist in children's books," said Library Commissioner Mary A. Dempsey. "One of the best things a parent can do for their child is to instill a love of reading. Simply reading with a child and showing them the joy to be found in books will set them on a successful path to reading and lifelong learning. Every year Bookamania enhances a child's joy of reading and love of books by bringing to life their beloved storybook characters with stories, magic, music and puppets during a festive family occasion they will always remember."

Children ages 3-10 and their families will have the opportunity to meet famous children's book authors, illustrators and costumed storybook characters; enjoy puppetry, theater, dance, magic and music performances; and participate in dozens of book-related crafts. Children's books also will be available for purchase.

This year's Bookamania will feature noted children's book authors and illustrators Eileen Christelow, Five Little Monkeys Reading in Bed; and Nina Crews, The Neighborhood Sing-Along. Also featured are authors Robert Burleigh, The Adventures of Mark Twain by Huckleberry Finn; and Arthur Dorros, Mamá and Me; and as always readalouds will take place in the "Big Red Chair." Children also will have the opportunity to have their picture taken with life-sized, costumed storybook characters like Clifford the Big Red Dog, Froggy, Maisy, Mother Goose, Tacky the Penguin, Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy, the Library Owl, Arthur and D.W.

Special performances of Folktales and Fairytales: Fractured, Twisted and Updated with Attitude will be presented by storyteller Linda Gorham; Good-night Moon Early literacy Activities with Chicago Children's Theater; Urban Animal and Aquatic Tails by Jabberwocky Marionettes and Jim Gill's Family Room Tour are planned. Additional performances by Chris Fascione, Sean Masterson, Jan's Clan Puppets, Lenny Marsh, Jasmin Cardenas, Linda Robertson, and the Kalapriya Center for Indian Performing Arts are also scheduled.
